

Michael graduated in 2005 from the Executive Doctor of Management (EDM) program at the Weatherhead School of Management, Case Western Reserve University. He currently is a Professor of Entrepreneurship, Department Chair and Director of the Inland Empire Center for Entrepreneurship at California State University San Bernardino. His research focuses on entrepreneurship and trust, innovation management, social entrepreneurship, entrepreneurial leadership and pedagogy. From 2005-2009 he was an adjunct faculty member at Case Western, teaching a research methods course and serving as a research methods of advisor for students in the Doctor of Management program at Case Western. Michael has more than 25 years of experience as an entrepreneur and business executive in both the for-profit and nonprofit sector.